The diagram illustrates a road intersection. On the left, a road with a dashed center line and solid outer lines approaches a T-junction. A black arrow points right, indicating the direction of travel. At the junction, the road turns right. To the right of the T-junction, the road continues straight. A dashed line indicates a lane change or a specific driving path. Further right, the road curves into a roundabout. A black arrow points clockwise, indicating the direction of travel around the roundabout. The road has a dashed center line and solid outer lines. The background is a light blue sky with a few clouds.
